Regulation of Their in Chilean and Spanish legislation [Las medidas de seguridad. Pasado, presente y ¿futuro? De su regulación en la legislación chilena y española]

Ballesteros P.T.

This study seeks to analyze the regulation of safety and correction measures in the Spanish and Chilean criminal legislation. By analysing their common legislative history, the study examines the evolution of safety measures in both countries, starting from the 1848 Spanish Criminal Code and the 1874 Chilean Criminal Code, up to current legislation and recent amendment proposals. The study's main purpose is to highlight significant decisions made in criminal policies that both countries have adopted and how those decisions conform, to a certain extent, with the characteristics we believe are crucial in safety measures.
