

Lebenswelt, philosophy of law and cosmopolitan citizenship in faktizität und geltung by habermas [LEBENSWelt, filosofía del derecho y ciudadanía cosmopolita en facticidad y validez de habermas1]

Valenzuela I.R.C.

The goal of this article is to expose the results of our review of the J. Habermas' text Faktizität und Geltung (1992), which main purpose was to visualize whether a citizenship of cosmopolitan character is able to be conceived from the beginning of the speech systematically, and whether the categorical restriction that Hebermans performs on his concept of communicative action of being valid only for post-conventional socio-evolutionarily worlds-of-life (Lebenswelt) is superpassed in its understanding of the discursively based rights and laws as a social integration mean.
